

How can I get this service?

You can ask for our support in many different ways:

You can ring us or call into the centre yourself

You can ask various agencies to get in touch with us

Your midwife, health visitor, social worker or your child's teacher.

What will happen if I ask for support?

At this stage we need to complete a short form. This is called a request form. You can either fill this in yourself or with someone you trust or a family support worker.

The request form collects some very basic details and asks you to think about what support you feel would be useful.

When we have this information a family support worker will write and arrange to visit you in your home, although if this is difficult for you we can meet somewhere else.

What happens next?

Your family support worker will make notes on each visit. These notes are kept securely and confidentially in a locked filing cabinet.

From the initial visit we will decide what support would be useful and put this into a plan of work. The plan of work will give details of what we will do and when it will be done by.

This support will be reviewed between 6 weeks and 3 months. This is to make sure that the support is:

What you expected

What you still want or need.

You are happy with the way things are going.

Together we will make a decision either to:

Carry on with further support

Link you into other groups or support agencies.

Family support provides a range of services that promote the well being of families and young children

All families experience difficulties at some time and it can be hard to know what to do for the best. It is important to remember you are not alone.
